Narikala

Located between the sulphur baths and the botanical garden of Tbilisi, Narikala is the ancient fortress overlooking the historic part of the city. Renamed by the Mongols in the 7th century as “Narin Qala”, meaning “little fortress”, Narikala has witnessed history changing the city and the city changing the history.

Tbilisi

Founded in the 5th century by the king of Iberia, Vakhtang I Gorgasali, Tbilisi is the capital and the largest city of Georgia. Named by the king himself, “Tbili’si” translates to English as “warm location”, outlining the importance of numerous sulphuric hot springs spread across the city. On the crossroads of Europe and Asia, Tbilisi was and still is the meeting point for global powers from west and east.

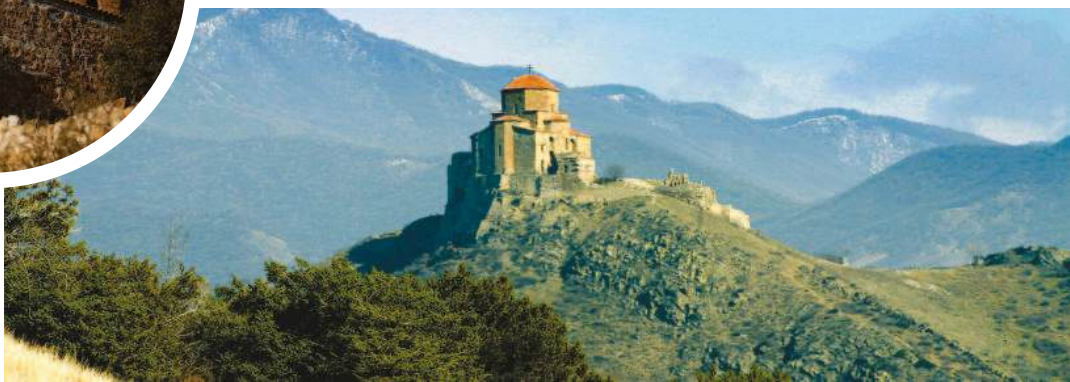

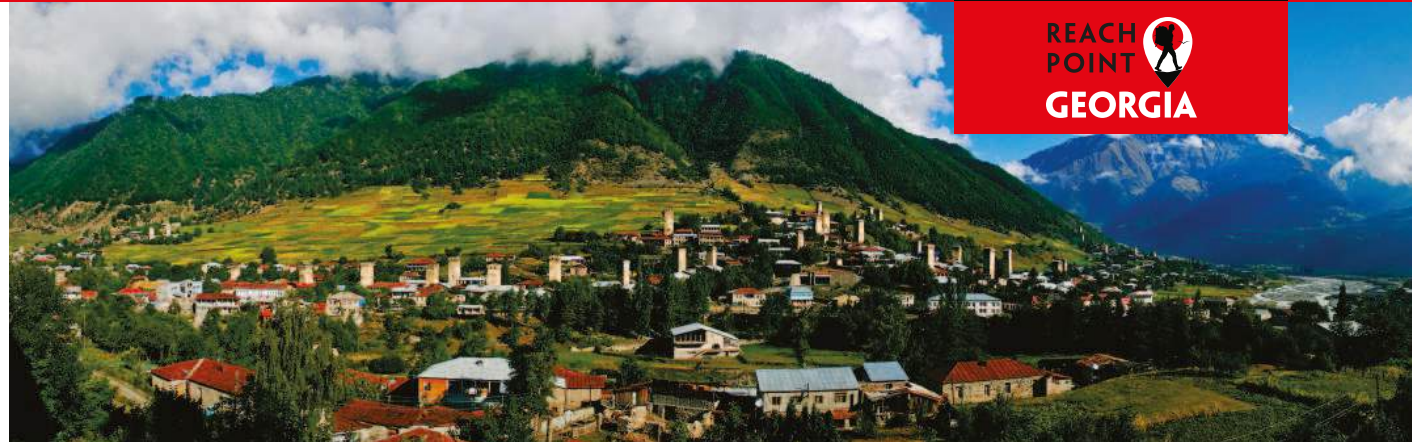

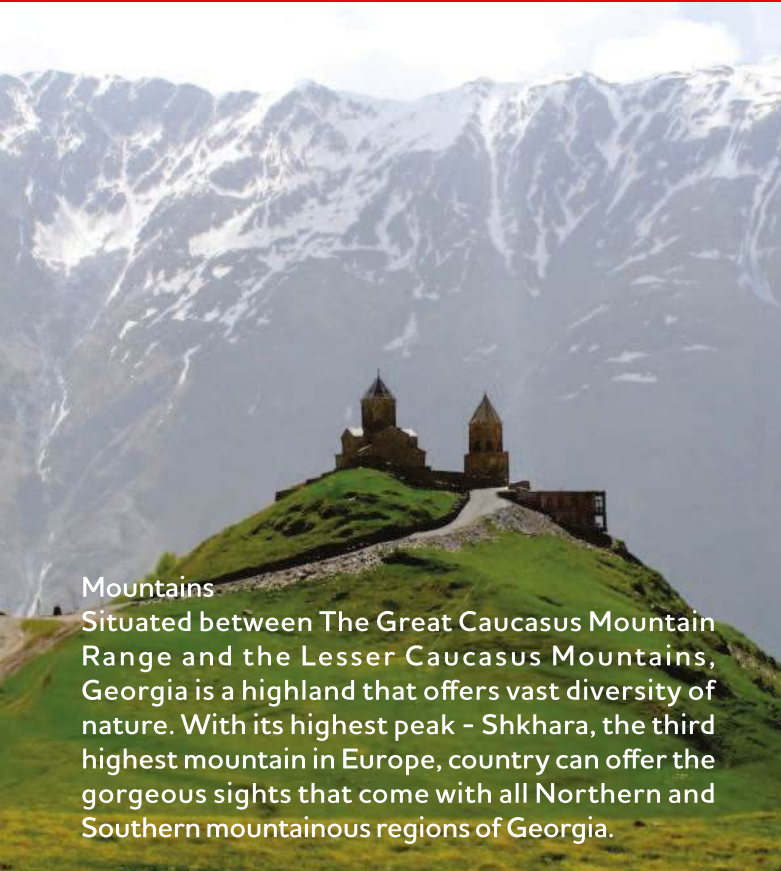

Mtskheta

One of the oldest cities in Georgia, Mtskheta has become a UNESCO world heritage site back in 1994. Known as the “Holy City”, Mtskheta has been and still is the center of Christianity in the country.

Svetitskhoveli Cathedral

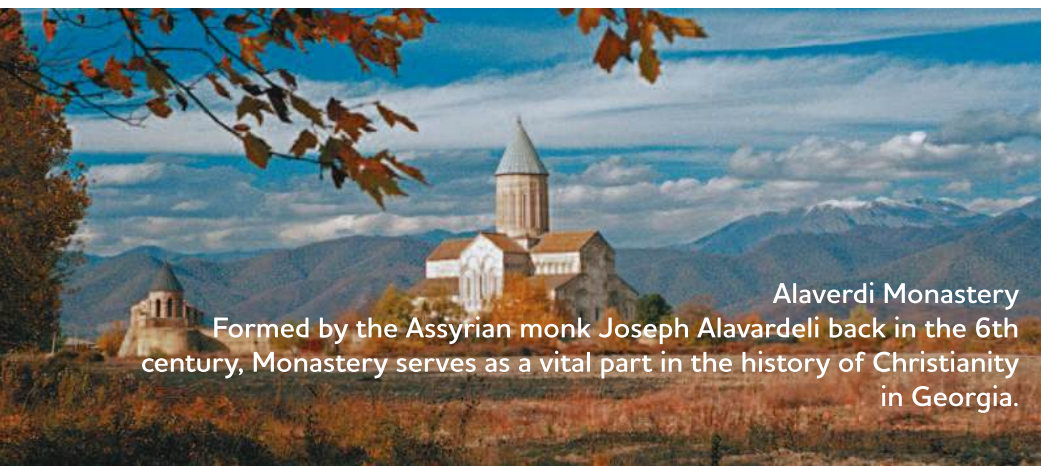

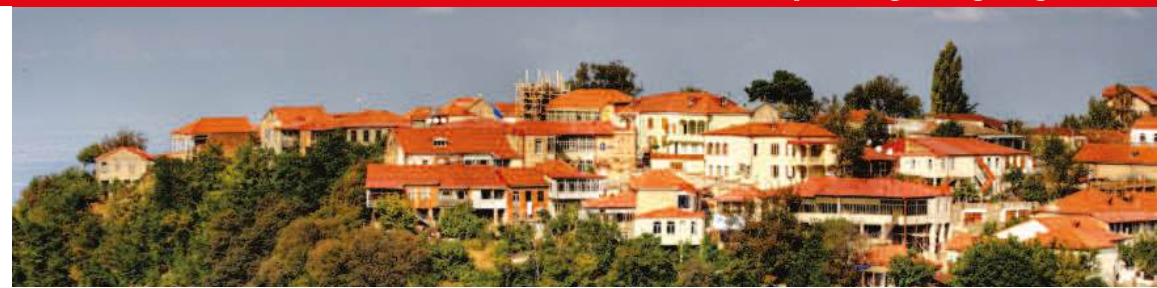

Burial site of the Christ's robe, Svetitskhoveli is the second largest church in Georgia. Also being one of the oldest Cathedrals, Svetitskhoveli has been listed on the UNESCO world heritage list. Completed in the 4th century, it has been demolished and rebuilt several times by famous Georgian historical figures.

Signagi
Known as the city of love to Georgians, Signagi is one of the most outstanding towns in Kakheti. Overlooking the infamous Alazani Valley, city is close to all Orthodox monuments in Kakheti, easternmost region of Georgia.

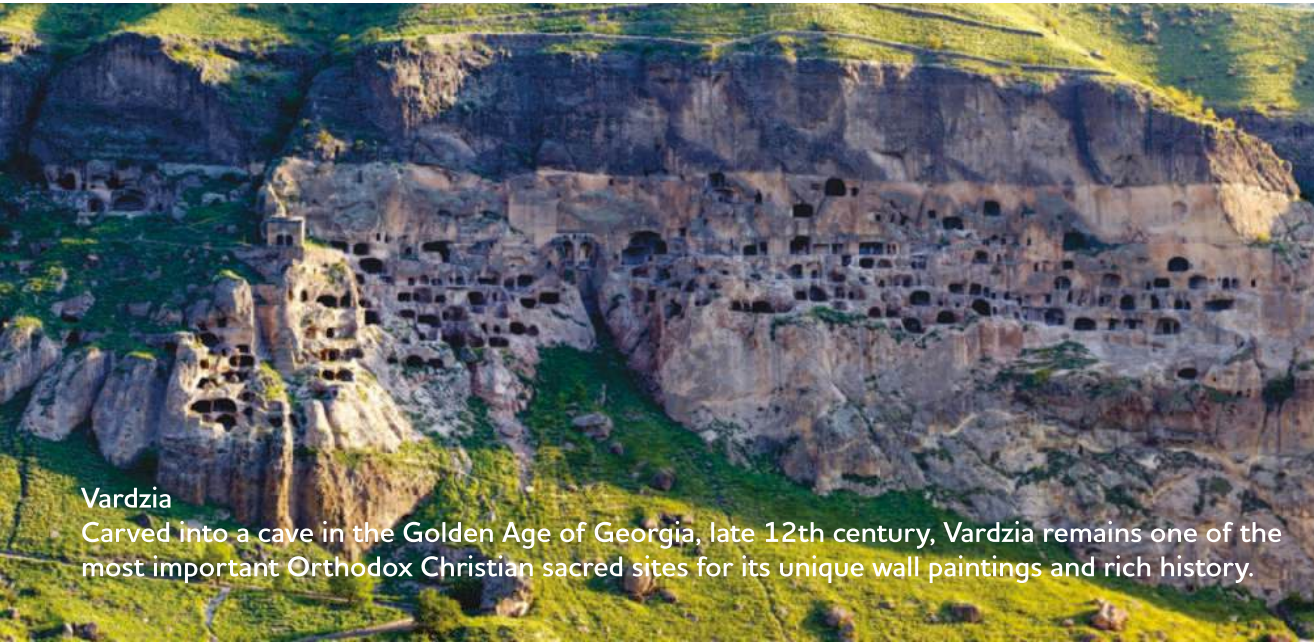

Alaverdi Monastery
Formed by the Assyrian monk Joseph Alavardeli back in the 6th century, Monastery serves as a vital part in the history of Christianity in Georgia.

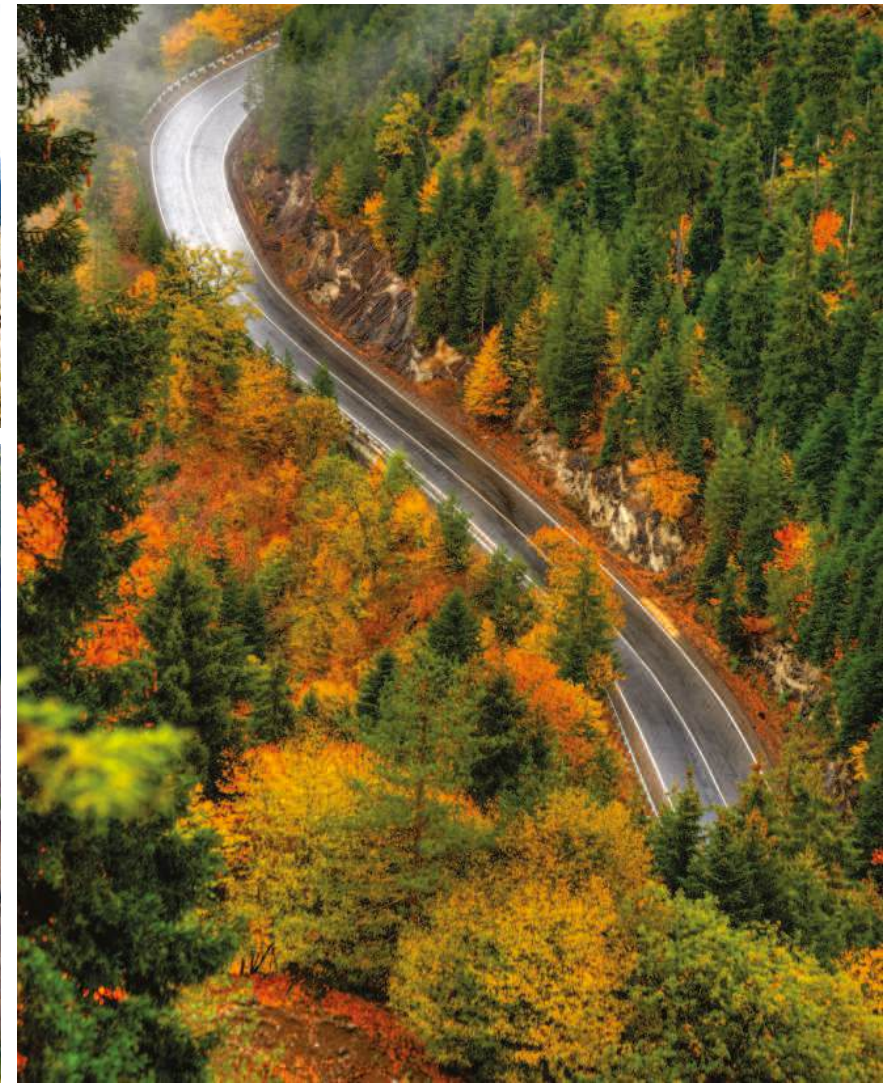

Rabati Castle

Initially called Lomisa Castle, this medieval complex was constructed in the 9th century, in Akhaltsikhe. Conquered by Ottomans in late 16th century, settlement remained Orthodox Christian until its exemption from the invaders in the 19th century.

Vardzia

Carved into a cave in the Golden Age of Georgia, late 12th century, Vardzia remains one of the most important Orthodox Christian sacred sites for its unique wall paintings and rich history.

Winter in Georgia

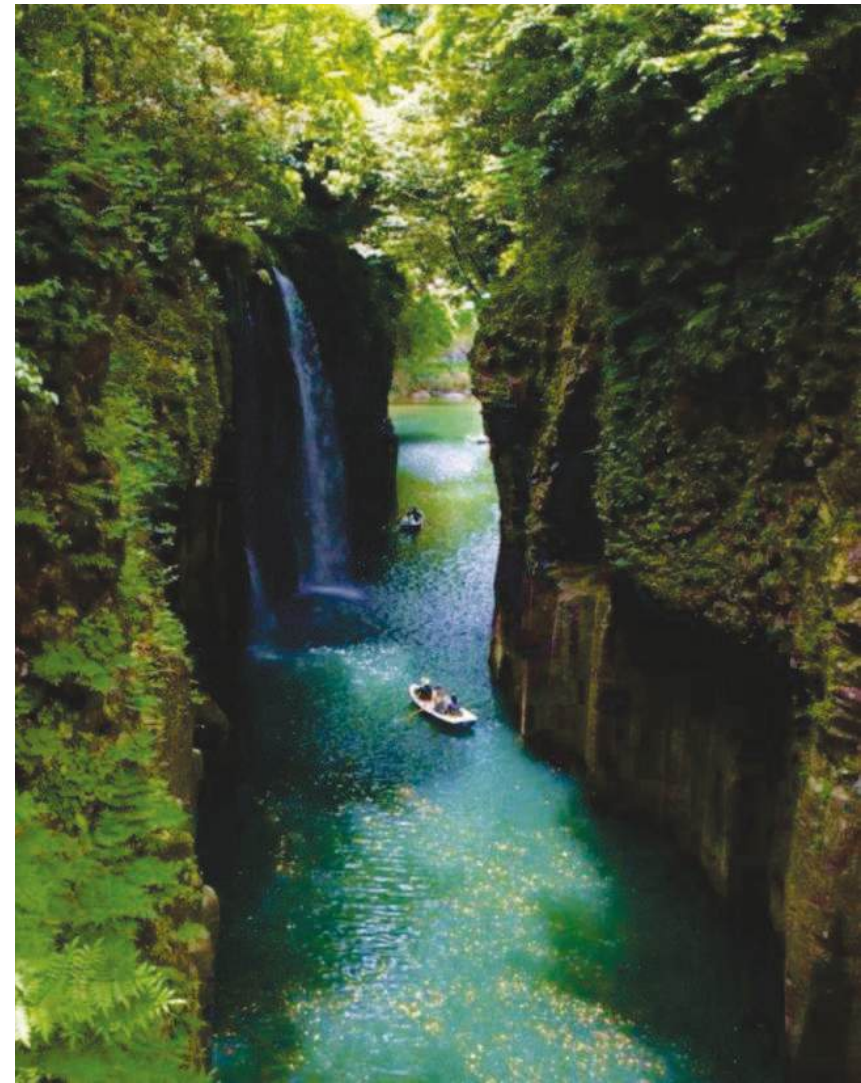

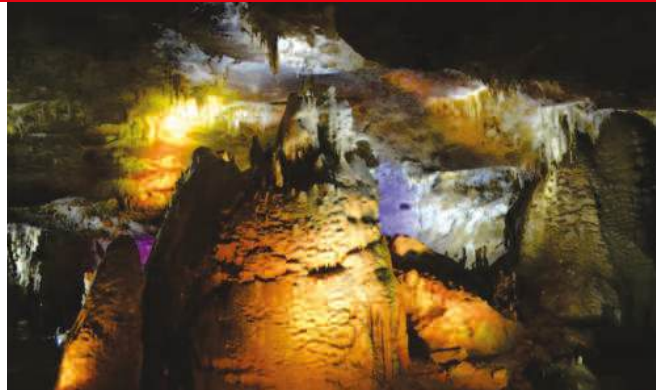

Georgia is one of the most popular destinations in winter as well. Perfect for skiing and snowboarding it also offers landscapes for snowshoeing. Gudauri and Bakuriani ski resorts, being the most packed and hectic during winter, are the places to be on your holidays.

Sunbathing on a sandy beach, hiking up the mountains to a breathtaking view or discovering natural wonders and getting accustomed to locals' hospitality? You don't have to choose, Georgia offers it all. From rocky mountains to relaxing sea resorts, our country is the top destination for summer!
